

The Middle Age

A Historical Day in the Middle Ages takes place at a medieval location close to your school. The schoolteachers together with the museum historians and education staff plan the day in advance. Local historical events and people are the basis of the day's scenario.

Water must be fetched.

Cooking for the feast.

Sometimes many classes, a whole grade, or maybe even the whole school participates in the Medieval Day. Then the entire staffs at the school become involved, as well as parents and others. Everybody can, in different ways, contribute to an educational and memorable day. Such a day, with so many participants, resembles more a day of festivities. The huge festivity is finished with a feast consisting of many different courses and with performances by knights and jokers.
